

Call for Papers

Issues of Climate Change and Environment in Asian Economies

Conference sessions in Taoyuan, Taiwan

&

Special issue of the Journal of Asian Economics

guest edited by Dr. Jr-Tsung Huang
National Chengchi University, Taipei, Taiwan.

Synopsis

Issues of climate change and environment are important not only for the quality of human life but also in a nation's economic development. Households, enterprises, and government at all levels respond in their economic behavior and decision making to cope with climate change and environmental problems, and conversely, the behavior of economic agents affects climate change and the environment. We invite papers that shed light on these behaviors and their ramifications in the Asian economic context. Policy oriented papers are welcome.

Conference in Taoyuan, Taiwan

Sessions on the economics of climate change and the environment will be convened at the 2019 International Conference of the Association for China Economic Studies (ACES) hosted by the College of Business at Chung Yuan Christian University, July 11-15, 2019. Conference website here.

Conference proposals may be submitted here.

Deadline for conference regular submission: May 1, 2019.

(Late submissions are acceptable, but with a higher registration fee.)

Journal Submission

Contributors to the Journal of Asian Economics Special Issue (SI) on "Climate Change and Environment" should so indicate at the time of submission. The normal $75 submission fee applies.

Journal metrics: RePEc 10yr citations factor 3.6; Clarivate IF, 0.75; CiteScore, 0.94. SSCI and Scopus indexed. ISSN: 1049-0078.

Manuscripts may be submitted here.

Window for submission: Jul 15-Dec 31, 2019.

Inquiries may be directed to Dr. Jr-Tsung Huang at jthuang@nccu.edu.tw.